Cutting Railroad Rates-Likely

Still Cutting Railroad Hates Kansas Crry, March 18 .- The railroad business seems to be approaching demoralization. Following the cut in passenger rates comes the slaughtering in freight rates, in which nearly all the roads entering and leaving this city seem to be interested. The Rock Island, Alton & Burlington road is carrying the bulk of the packing-house products at greatly reduced rates. The Chicago, St. Paul and Kansas City are making rates on a 30 cent basis to Kansas City and Des Moines group point. The regular rates are made on a basis of 60 cents. The Wabash is handling corn to Toledo and other Eastern points at a 31/2 cent rebate. The cutting of rates seems to be secret, and there appears to be no present indication of the war being brought to a satisfactory termination.

Railroad Accident.

MILWAUKEE, March 19 .- A collision between two passenger trains has been reported on the Northwestern road at Lavalle, Wisconsin. Several persons are reported killed.

CHICAGO, March 19.—Telegrams to the general officer of the Northwestern road say the accident at Lavalle, Wis., happened as follows: Two passenger trains were to meet there; there was a mistake as to the side-tracking of one, and a collision resulted. One w four men and one child were hurt two quite seriously.

Proceedings of Congress

y Associated Press. Washington, March 19-The Maryland contested election case of Mudd vs. Compton was called up and the debate limited to six hours. Lacey of S. J. HODGKINSON'S lows opened the discussion in support of the claim of the contestant. Vice-President Morton occupied the chair in the Senate to-day. The resolution offered by Voorhees on Monday to the Agricultural Departsed the Senate on it.

Mine Disaster. Associated Press.] HURLEY (Wis.), March 19.—A great fire is raging in the Germania mine, and five miners have perished. All efforts to stay the flames are unsuccessful. The unfortunate men are: James Thomas, his con, Joseph, Hugh Waller, Jimmy Sullivan and William Banks, all miners. The loss will reach $100,000.

Snow Storm - Another Arrest.

By Associated Press.]
New York, March 19.—The snow began falling heavily this morning, and at I1 o'clock was five inches deep. Charles E. Hibbain, a special deputy Sheriff connected with the Sheriff's office, was arrested this morning on a charge of extortion.

GUTHING (Ind. Ter.), March 19.—

The patrol of the Cherokee strip by the forces of the United States Army has began. These troops were massed at this point, enging from Hote, and will march to four different points. along the southern boundary of the strip, thence will march in squads, covering as much ground as possible north through the strip, notifying the settlers who new remain, of the Presi dent's notice, and forcibly evicting those who refuse to go voluntarily

Washington, March 19.-It has been discovered that the Cheroke Homesteaders Association has issued a secret circular calling for a genera raid into the strip from all directions Death of Judge Hager of S on April 22d. It says they have rea-son to believe that they will not be molested if a sufficiently large number go in. On the strength of this President Harrison has authorized the statement that the settlement of the strip will not be allowed until duly authorized, no matter what proportions the raid assumes.

Suspended Animation.

ly Associated Press.]
LIMA (Ohio), March 18.—A remarkable story of suspended animation comes from Mount Blanchard, near this city. A few days ago Arthur, the four-year-old son of Aaron Naus, died, as everybody supposed; all the signs of life were gone. There was no breathing, no pulse, and no warmth for, and proceeded to lay out the corpse, accomplishing his work with the full belief that the body was really dead. The little fellow remained in this condition until about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when some persons were smazed to see signs of life. The family was called, and it was not

DUBUQUE, March 18 .- Sheriff Phillips of this county has in custody four brothers named Green, who for the last two or three years have been carrying on a sort of Jesse James business on a small scale in Dubuque and Judson counties. While ostensibly engaged in farming, they devoted most of their time to making raids on their neighbors. They stole everything they could lay their hands on. DANVILLE, Ill., March 18.—Otto Fisher, aged 18, the son of Dr. Fisher of Georgetown, this county. was arrested yesterday for counterfeiting nickels and dollars. The molds and a quantity of partly finished coins were found in a barn where young Fisher carried on his operations. In default he was brought here to the County Jail to await his trial. His counterfieit coins are such good imitations that they were easily passed.

Army Desertions. Washington, March 18.—Senate Plumb has introduced a bill "To Prevent Desertions from the Army." The bill provides that after July 1, 1890, there shall be retained from the pay which was aground with Secretary of each enlisted man $4 a month for Tracy on board, has come off, and the first year of enlistment, which is reached Norfolk uninjured. Tracy has not to be paid to him until his discharge, and which is to be forfeited unless he serves honorably and faithfully to the date of his discharge. The Secretary of War is to determine what misconduct shall constitute a failure to fulfill these conditions, but no deserter shall be deemed to have fulfilled them. The sums so deducted are to be considered a deposit bearing interest from the end of the year in which it is made. Enlistments are to continue, as under the present law, for apparent. The undertaker was sent five years, but at the end of three years service a soldier who has served faithfully shall be entitled to a three months' furlough, and to be discharged on application in time of peace. United States Marshals and Sheriffs and their deputies, Constables and police officers are authorized to arrest deserters. In time of peace the President may permit any enlisted man to purchase his discharge. The army ration is to be increased by the addition of one pound of vegetables. Another Fearful Slaughter.

Indianapolis, March 19 .- A part of the roof of the Bowen-Merrill building, which was gutted by fire two days ago, fell this afternoon, burying a large number of men in the ruins. It is believed that from 15 to 25 persons were killed or injured.

The reports of eye witnesses are very conflicting as to the number supposed to be in the wreck. Probably the most of those near the falling wall scaped.

Peter Albin and William Meadows both carpenters, engaged in bracing the iron front, were buried beneath both considerably hurt. It is impos sible to make a thorough search of the wreck yet, as the rest of the iron front threatens to topple over at any time.

Immediately after the fall of the roof the east wall of the adjoining building, occupied by Bicknell's store, fell in. It is believed all the clerks ard customers escaped.

The Reasons Assigned. By Cable and Associated Press.]

BERLIN, March 19.-Bismarck, in note to the Emperor tendering his resignation, alleged that old age and failing health were his reasons for desiring to withdraw from public life. To-day's papers call attention to the fact that, while taking lunch yesterday with a delegation to the Labor he is dead. He saw the body after Conference, Bismarck gave a cordial greeting to Jules Simon, head of the French delegation, and had a long conversation with him. He has in vited all the French delegates to dine with him to-morrow.

London, March 19 .- The stock market is weak on account of Bismarck's retirement from office.

Looking Better for Steele.

By Associated Press.]
CHICAGO, March 19.—The trial by court martial of Lieutenant Steele of the 8th cavaly for the alleged maltreatent of private Dell H. Wild, was resumed this morning. Evidence was introduced to prove that Wild formerly served in the army under the name of Daniel H. Ward. Wild, when questioned, declined to say how long he had been in the service, and admitted that he could not bring any one to tes tify to his good character.

THE St. Louis Globe-Democrat thinks Utah's chances of admission into the Union have been greatly improved since the Salt Lake City election. There can be no doubt of that. Every blow given to polygamy and to the autocratic ambition of the Church to be first in the State improves the chances of admission. Not one of the Territories has so large a population as Utah. Not one of the new States just admitted was so well equipped for Statehood, as Utah. Save for the blight of Mormonism, considered in its civic capacity, Utah would have been made a State years ago. It has now nearly 250,000 inhabitants, mainly industrious and thrifty people. It has an immense area of land under a high state of cultivation, thanks to Mormon perseverance and economy. It has many large towns and a capital that is a surprise in all respects that are favorable to growth and permanency. But just as long as half, or more than half, of the people of the Territory hold of doubtful accomplishment.

This book contains 480 pages; is eight and one-half inches long, six inches wide and two inches thick. It is printed on extra heavy paper and is handsomely bound, with embossed cover and gilt-lettered back.

It is different from all other works ever published. First - It teaches those who have it how to tell what the matter is when a person gets sick.

All similar books tell what to do if you know what the disease is. This book tells you HOW TO DETECT you HOW TO DETECT THE DISEASE, and then what to do for it

No other Book Published does this.

Second-When a person is really attacked by a dan-gerous disease, it enables you to know the fact, and in such cases its advice is: "Send for a competent physician at once." But in all ordinary cases, such as can be easily cured, it gives full directions for treatment.

Third-It is not confined to the practice used by any one class of physicians; but it gives, separately, and for each disease, the methods used by each of the different schools of medicine, and in ALL CASES the PRE-SCRIPTIONS ARE MADE by the MOST EMINENT MEN id their respective modes of practice. This makes the work specially suited to the needs of every family, no matter what medical school they prefer. No other Book Published Does this.

TESTIMONIALS:

Having examined the advance sheers of the work entitled "Our Family Physician," I can say that I find it accurate in its descriptions of diseases and reliable in its theraputical department.

H. F. COOK, M. D.,
Professor of Theory and Practice,
Hahnemann Medical College.

I have examined the sdvance sheets of "Our Family Physician." It gives me pleasure or ecommend the work as correct in its mode of treatment of disease, and it deserves wide circulation.

J.F. COOK, M. D., Professor in Burnett's Medical College, Chicago.

After examining the publication "Our Family Physician" I can fully endorse the opinions expressed of its merits by the above gentlemen. R. A. GUNN, M.D. Professor of the Burnett Medical College.

I hereby certify that I have examined a work entitled "Our Family Physician," and find it to be correct in its diagnosis, and in my opinion, worthy of the confidence of the lublic. H. S. HANN, M.D.

The book contains a valuable chapter of symptoms, which will aid wonderfully in diagnosing discusses, and the proper remedies are given for Allopathic, Homeopathic, Eclectic, Hydropathic and Herbal treatments.

We have a number of the books on hand, and we invite inspection.

on hand, and we invite inspection.

There are three chapters in the "Family Physician" which are worthy of special mention, namely, those on "Diseuses of Women," "seases of Infants" and "Care of the sick."

The first of these is a model of its kind. It is chaste in ilensuage, contains no disgusting pictures for children to happen on and be overcutions about, and taken altogether is the most practical, sen ble and straignt-forward treatise upon this delicate subject that has everbeen printed.

This chapter alone is worth many times the cost of the book to every mother, even if it had to be purchased at its regular price.

The other chapters referred to are equally well written and valuable, see "Our Plan" on 4th page.

It is customary with newspapers to give premiums to new subscribers only; but the publishers of the Werker Hazer is mean to revise this oil rule; they intend to do as well, attle st, by their old subscribers—the we who have stood by the paper in years past, and paid their money for it "right straight along." We propose to show our apprecation of these friends in a substantial manner; and as the presnium to be offesed is expensive, and as ou express object in offering it is to increase our list of subscribers, we will ask every old subscriber who may renew his subscription, thus receiving the valuable premium, to constitute himself a missionary, and aid us in securing at least ONE new subscriber. No matter what hour the trains arrive, that comfortable Riverside Hotel bus, with "Phil" as conductor, never fails to catch them all. It would be difficult to mention an article of general utility not to be found at C. J. Brookins' variety store, and his prices place them within the reach of all.

George Becker's Granite Saloon is where you will never fail to find a comfortable fire, the daily papers a hot soup lunch and Pacific and Fred-ericksburg beer.

This is the time of the year to find at Miss Emma Gibbs' Virginia street store, all the spring fashions in both hats and bonnets; also a complete stock of fancy goods.

stock of fancy goods.

Those in want of the best family groceries should not fail to examine J. N. Wallaces stock and prices, for his goods are the best, and he is bound not to be undersold by anybody.

There is no article in the line of the best stationery that cannot be had at C. A. Thurston's news depot. He a so carries an elegantly assorted stock of miscellaneous works, either in single volumes or in full sets.

We'll Suppose a Case.

You are nervous and dyspeptic, your appetite flags, your slumber is broken or disturbed by uneasy dreams, or you court the sleepy god in vain. What shall you do? Try an alcoholic excitant to stimulate appetite, deaden the nerves at b.d time with petite, deaden the nerves at b.d time with a narcotic? Neither of these. Try Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It will, believe us, be more than a trial. You will continue to use this justly renowned nerve invigorant and stomatic. It is in the exigency supposed just what is wanted. It is a healthful stimulus to appetite and digestion does not excite, but quiets the brain and rerves, is an excellent duretic and a speedy reformer of a disordered condition of the liver and bowels. It counterasts a tendency to rheumatism nullifles the prostrating efforts of overwork, mitigates the infirmatives of age, and hastens convalescence. Persons exposed to rough weather should use it as a preventive, as should also tired students and business men.

Electric Bitters.

This remedy is becoming so well known and so popular as to need no special men tion. All who have used Electric Bitters sing the same song of praise. A purer medicine does not exist and it is guaranteed to do all hat is claimed. Electric Bitters will cure all diseases of the liver and kidneys, will re-move pimples, boils, salt rheum and other affections caused by impure blood. Will drive Malaria from the system and prevent as well as cure all Malarial fevers. For cure of Headache, Constipation and Indigestion try Electric Bitters. RENO PUBLIC LIBRARY.

Owing to a Want of Proper En-couragement It is to be Tem-porerlly Closed.

Last Saturday week an article appeared in the Reno papers, stating that the Trustees of the Public Library thought seriously of closing that institution. Since then there has been another meeting, at which it was the unanimous vote of the Board that it could not be continued and run successfully on the present basis of man-agement. No doubt every one on reading the above will exclaim, "That's just what I thought! They never can run a library in Reno for any length of time."

Of course, it can not be done unless

Of course, it can not be done unless there are means to do it with. The Trustees have worked hard and have tried their very best to keep it going when the subscriptions never once paid the running expenses. Then the ladies have gotten up several benefits to pay the indebtedness, the last of which was very discouraging to the lady Trustees, who had expected to hand over $400 or $500, but were disappointed at only netting $125. Here is an instance where the people of Reno could have contributed a share towards the support of a library, but they did not do so.

It is not the intention of the Trustees to sell the books and property, but to put them away, and when the Legislature meets next winter they have to petition it to allow the town

Legislature meets next winter they hope to petition it to allow the town to levy a small tax for library purposes, which would insure establishing posses, which would insure establishing a permanent organization that in a few years would grow, and Reno will then have a library to feel proud of. It is next to impossible to keep anything going by subscription, for every month the librarian says some one drops off Laying and a large num-ber complain against paying fifty cents or a dollar a month.

There not being any other such desirable location as the present one, the Library will be closed March 24th. All those having books will please return them on or before that date.

McKISSICK'S OPERA HOUSE.

The Attraction Next Thursday Evening.

Dumas' great work "Monte Cristo," as interpreted by James O'Neill, is a masterpiece. The plot of "Monte Cristo" is one of those prolific conspiracies of modern French history where human lives are destroyed by false imprisonment, conspiracies and murder for the purpose of securing title and money. The Chateau d'If was a prison in which many unfortunates sank into premature graves on account of the rascality of their immediate relations. Edmond Dantes spent eighteen years in this human slaughter-house, and A Sacramento dispatch of the 18th inst. says: It has rained without informission all night, and this morning brought no prospect of clearing. ing brought no prospect of clearing.

In many places in the valley the fall was very heavy, and there was rain at every point in Northern California where records are kept. There was rain and snow in the Sierra Nevadas last night and to-day but the fall is least night and the knowledge of the intrigue of that instead of being crushed by the conspirators who had him arrested and imprisoned, and of the punish-through the Behring Strait, where heaven, and exclaims with a power of heart-felt anguish and eloquence, "The world is mine!" James O'Neill, in the title role, gives a strong and polished impersonation to the part. His musical voice and symmetrical form lend a charm to his portrayal that is exceedingly pleasing. Were it not that this production is familiar to the public, it would be an exceedingly pleasing task to review its many strik-ing features at this time. As it is, it ing features at this time. As it is, it is safe to say that the play has lost none of its thrilling interest or melodramatic effectiveness. Its many strong situations and picturesque tableaux are novel, inspiring and fascinating Mr. O'Neill's word is imbued with with great dash, grace fire and chival-ric spirit, and its and its artistic and salient points are made to tell with splendid effect. The company which will support Mr. O'Neill in even better will support Mr. O'Neill in even better than any of previous seasons. The mounting will be complete in every detail, the stage setting being perfect. Undoubtedly it will be the finest and most perfectly produced play that will be at McKissick's Opera House this season.

The world is so large, and all round about Filled with curious puzzles for him to find out. That he can not be patient, to loiter, and wait. To stay within doors, and lie in bed late; He wants to be up at the beep of the day. To lose not a moment for work, or for play.

And when the dim twilight its soft shadow throws He climbs on the wall to see where the sun goes And wants to be out when the moon comes, to know
If she shows her round face or is bent like a bow.
And gladly would stay in the darkness and damp To watch for the gleam of the fire-fly's lamp. At last, when he scarcely can hold up his head, He yields himself slowly to home, friends and

And longing in body and spirit for rest.
He meekly submits to be soothed and caressed
And coos in his innocence, dove-like and white

OCEAN REMINISCENCES. A Remarkable Mirage, and the Captain's Mad Purpose. Let me recall a trifling incident of my shipboard life—an experience small and brief, indeed, but vividly fresh and of clearest and keenest outline in memory. We were on the Mozambique par-allels, well to the eastwards; the weather hot, the sky copperish, and the sea of a sallowish blue, with a thick, slow flow of swell as though the water was heavy and sluggish with oil; a weak breeze of wind blew off the port quarter with a sort of sting of heat in it, like the bite of the sun himself; and the ship under all studding-sails on that side went rolling forward in a kind of loathing way, as though alive to the trucks with instinct; and I very well remember the slopping noise of the water as it fell from her bow like flinging bucketsful of liquid grease overboard.

It was about two o'clock in the afternoon, when the thickness over the star board bow died out along the horizon there and showed the sea-line clear to the edge of the ocean, with a twisting and glancing of yellow fires in it from the sun, as though lines of molten brass were slowly sinking in it. It was then that a sail was made out some three points on the bow or thereabouts, apcarently a large ship, showing to her courses with her mizzen-topmast gone, and the spanker-gaff naked, with some colors flying at it. As we slowly rose her she showed like a frigate upon the water, with her band of broken ports and her big wing of standing jib; and I beard the captain tell the mate after taking a long view of her through a telescope that he believed she was such and such a ship, naming a well-known Indiaman of those days. She was in distress, it was now gathered; for it seems that she carried a brace of signal halyards at her gaff-end, on one of which was hoisted the English ensign, jack down, while on the other fluttered a row of bunting out of Marryat's Code, sigallying that there was serious sickness then; her canvas had the whiteness of froth touched by moonshine; she rose and fell very majestically, her ports bristling and fading as she leaned to the heave of the waters. By the aid of the glass, which I furtively employed on the mate turning his back, I could distinctly ing at her davits, the gleams off the glass of her large windows, the hurried shadowing of her sails as they swung in and out, and the flags hovering in reds and whites and blues from the peak end. The helm of our ship was shifted for her, and we got her right under our flying jibboom end. There was not enough yawn in the foot of the foresail to disclose her from the poop; and it being now four o'clock and my turn to quit the deck, I strolled forward on to the forecastle to watch the very noble picture on the sealine that was rendered significant beyond expression by her appealing colors and by the mutilation of her abaft. A group of our Jacks stood against one of the catheads gazing, too. I had not been looking above three minutes when one of them exclaimed, in a

I can see that ship now as I saw her

"What, the blazes! Is that there muck a-drawing up around her, or is she a-dis-

"The 'Flying Dutchman,' or my eyes ain't mates!" said a second man, in sub-dued voice of mingled awe and astonishment

"Watch her a-dying out! Smite me, if mortal eyes ever see the like of that.

My gaze was upon the ship as the men spoke; and, sure enough, I observed her to be slowly melting out, not as though a fog were driving down upon her, but as a rainbow dies, the tints shining and fading and perishing. In a few mo-ments all was blank sea where she had

There was an expression of dismay on every wart-ridden, whiskered face I glanced at. The captain, the mate and glanced at. The captain, the mate and a number of passengers were moving and mopping like goblins over the brass rail at the break of the poop in search of the amazing phantasm. It was, of course, a mirage; but it took all hands, from the skipper down to the cook's mate, some time to realize it, so marvelous had been the filusion, so substantial to the vision that rolling and stately fabric, so exquisitely had the painted mirroring of her fitted the line of the sea. With some fancy that the real object could not be far off, the captain continued to head in the direction in which the mirage had shone until the darkness came, when the shep was brought to her course afresh. A few days before we sailed from Calcutta we get news of this phantom recel. She had been some leagues below the horizon on which her likeness was painted, signaling for assistance to another ship seven or eight miles distant from her. Had the quality of the atmosphere remained as it was, by which I mean had the mirage lingered awhile longer, no doubt we should have brought the simulacrum of the other vessel into view. Thus it will be seen that ships as well as men have their

This recalls to me another incident belonging, however, to no experiences of my own. It was the chief mate of this same ship from whose deck we sighted the mirage who told me the story. He was third mate of a very handsome clipper barque, bound to a handsome clipper barque, bound to New Zealand port. The captain of her was a tall, austere man, with a grissly beard, and an eye of the dead blackness of unpolished jet. Instead of speaking of him as the "old man," his sailors called him "the monk." He was exceedingly reserved, said little or nothing at table or on deck outside such instructions as he had to give; yet, spite of his monastic or collegiate looks which might have qualified him to adorn a pulpit rather than a merchantman's quarter-deck, he was an excellent sailor, possessed of a thorough knowledge of every walk of his voca-tion, and a man of considerable refinement of speech. Nothing particular occurred until the little barque was drawing on to the equator, when it was observed that the aptain grew restless. He seemed unable to sleep; throughout the night watches he was incessantly arriving on deck, and for a whole half hour at a time he would stand right in front of the binnacle, obscuring it to the sight of the man at the wheel, and keeping his eyes fixed upon the card with the lifeless air of a person acting in his sleep. At noon one day the latitude was found to be about six miles north. There was a pleasant breeze blowing off the port beam, and the clipper keel was made by the log to be sliding through it at some seven miles in the hour. The captain, putting down and stood before it, holding his watch in his hand. There was a light as of fever in the gaze he rooted upon the dial plate. Suddenly he called to the second mate, who had charge: "Hands to the port braces. Get the yards trimmed for a westerly course. Down below." The little ship came round with the men rounding in upon the braces too astonished to sing out. The captain walked the deck chafing his hands and chuckling. "Now, sir, we have it," he cried to the second mate. "Have what, sir?" asked the astounded officer. "The equator, sir," roared the captain. "The equator?" cried the mate, looking round him. "Yes, sir, true as a hair by the magnetic bearings a fore and aft line, sir. Keep to that course, d'ye hear. Not an inch off to port or starboard, or quicker than you can say Jack Robinson I'll blow your brains out!"

The second mate, glancing through the skylight, observed the chief officer in the cabin, and with a slight motion of his head summoned him on deck. The man arrived, with a face of wonder, gazing aloft and around, and not a little amazed to find the ship bound to the Eastern American seaboard instead of New Zealand, "This is to be an achievement; sir," shouted the captain to him, "that'll rank me foremost amongst the most famous men this century has produced." The mate viewed him with a stupid look of interrogation. "Sir," cried the captain, approaching him with an expression of ecstacy on his singular coun-tenance, "the keel of this barque will be the first that ever plowed the line of the equator without a hair-breadth of deviation for one thousand miles at least; and mark you this," he cried, drawing himself erect and extending his clenched fist at the mate, "if I catch the vessel's head off her course by the smallest fraction of a point I will blow out the brains of the man who has charge of the deck at the time." He slapped his breast that the two men might guess what he concealed there, and, picking up his sextant, stalked below. The unfortunate creature went entirely out of his mind that night, and they had to pinion him to prevent him from destroying himself, or dealing death to the ship by firing her. He died within the week, raving mad, not a little to the relter of the mates, who could do nothing for him beyond seeing him carefully watchedow W. Clark Russell, in N. Y Independent.

Burning a Dead "Jap. As a policeman was patroling in the neighborhood of a public cemetery at Aotomura, Tokio, he observed a green flame in the burial ground, and discovered that a man was engaged in the act of burning a dead body. He arrested the man. Investigations then ensued, and it was learned that the body was that of a man who had recently died in the village of Aotomura, a place inthe village of Actomura, a place in-habited by a class formerly known as "yets," who used to burn their dead, and that the arrested man had been carrying out the old custom. In the absence of suspicious circumstances the man was released. The chief of the village and the leading villagers have een informed that the old-time custom must not again be indulged in.

Marvels in Match-Making.

Several ingenious machines for the various operations in the match manuacture have already been invented in Scandinavia, and more are shortly ex-pected. Both in Sweden and Norway nachines for packing the matches have cently been tried, and, it is under stood, with good results. The Norwegian machine is the invention of two young engineers at Gjovik, and it is said to be able to pack one thousand boxes per minute, which is equal to the work of forty packers. The other machine is invented by a Swedish engineer of Stockholm, but can probably not pete with the former.

Pads of Portable Ink.

Pads of portable ink may be had at some of the stationers or dealers in such ampplies in various places. The plan is of German origin, and at one time was used in this country, though this was, as well as we remember, ten or more years ago, and it may have fallen into disuse, though it certainly should be quite a boon to travelers. The portable ink can readily be made by any one by simply obtaining some aniline color of the deared tint, making a strong solution of the same in a little alcohol, immersing in the solution suitably cut strips of absorbent paper and allowing these to dry, when they will be ready for use in the manner above described.

THE AMERICAN FLAG.

nsed History of the Adopti the Stars and Stripes. The recent discussions concerning the alteration of the United States flag, in states into the Union, naturally provoked a certain amount of inquiry the history of the stars and stripes. The general facts in regard to the adoption of the National flag are more or less well known, including the much-debated question as to whether or not the emolem owes its present form to the fact that the family arms of George Washington included the stars and stripes that are now so familiar. However this may be, it is certain that the flag was by act of Congress passed June 14, 1777, established as having thirteen red and white stripes and a union of thirteen white stars in a blue field, and the stars, instead of being the six-pointed stars of heraldry, as they are on our coins, are, and always have been, the fivepointed stars of Washington's coat-ofarms, known in heraldry as "mullets." The flag was, January 13, 1794, decreed by act of Congress to have the number of both stars and stripes changed to fifteen, and this was the flag that flew at the battles of Fort McHenry and New Orleans in the war of 1812, and which was sung of for the first time as the "Star-Spangled Banner." By an act of Congress passed April 4, 1818, the flag was again changed finally, and it was resolved that the stripes should be thirteen in number and that the blue field should contain as many stars as there might be States in the Union. This much is generally known, but only a few perhaps are aware that the flag as it is now was designed by Captain Samuel C. Reid, and that the one made by his wife, a silken ensign of the pres ent form, flew at the masthead of the brig General Armstrong when it was destroyed by the British squadron in the port of Fayal in 1814. Congress d a resolution of thanks to Captain passed a resolution or thanks to capable Reid in 1859, and he died shortly after in New York. It was the claim of his son, Colonel

Samuel C. Reid, now living and practic ing as a lawyer in Washington, for the value of the ship thus destroyed in a neutral port-a claim which lingered for years and years before Congress - which gave to the late David D. Lloyd the groundwork of the story of "The Senator," while old Colonel Reid himself, to whose stubborn preseverance the passage of the claim was due, formed the original model for Mr. Crane's character of Silas Denman in the comedy. Colonel Samuel C. Reid is said to be somewhat of a character in his way, and it is certain that he never tires of recounting the details of the action in which his father's ship was lost, and in which it is claimed the English lost over three hundred men and officers, while the American loss was only two killed and seven wounded. The General Armstrong was finally scuttled near the beach, and subsequently fired and blown up by the enemy.-N. Y. Times.

Feeding Canary Birds

A good many people don't know how to take care of canary birds, and I, therefore, give them the following advice which I got from a bird-fancier:
"Never give your bird sugar, or figs, or raisins, or any thing sweet, except a small piece of sweet apple (peeled) twice a week. Put the apple in the cage in the morning and take it out at night. It should have all the rape and canary seed it wants and gravel should be kept at the bottom of the cage. Avoid feeding the bird celery. Twice a week feed it on one-third of a botled egg, using both the white and the yellow of the egg. Grate up the egg; that is better than putting it in whole. Give it the egg the day before it gets the apple and as large a piece of the former as of the latter. Let it have a bath every other day, using water with the chill taken off."—Epoch. seed it wants and gravel should be kept

The students and teachers of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institue, Tuskegee, "Ala., are raising wholly among themselves and the colored people of the State a permanent scholarship of one thousand dollars for that school to be called the "Olivia Davidson Washington Memorial Scholarship." Each student contributes one cent a week and the graduates are to give one dollar a year.
